NEXT DOOR TO THE POST OFFICE.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform her friends and the public, that she has removed from Water to Front street, next door to the Post Office, in that large range of buildings lately occupied by Mr. George Miltenberger; situated in a healthy and mercantile part of the city, its contiguity to the numerous Warehouses and its centrality for business, will render it particularly advantageous to merchants and others. The house is airy and extensive, and no pains or expense has been spared to make it comfortable. Also, a very extensive Brick Stable has been fitted up in the best possible manner, and surpassed by none, with a carriage-house attached.

From her long experience in business, and being provided with every necessary, both as to comfort and convenience, together with that strict attention which will be [illegible]

Dissolution of Partnership.

THE partnership heretofore existing under the firm of S. & J. THOMPSON, Merchant Taylors, was this day dissolved by mutual consent; and as it has now become absolutely necessary that the books of the concern should be settled up, they give this notice, that Samuel Thompson is authorised to attend to this business, and that they earnestly request all who know themselves indebted to said firm, to come forward as soon as may be, and settle their accounts, and all who have claims against them, to present them for payment. They further note that if this reqnest is not complied with in a reasonable time, that all the accounts without distinction of persons, shall be put in the hands of a proper person for collection.

S. & J. Thompson, will in future carry on their former business under their separate names, and respectfully inform their friends and the public that any commands in their line of business will be promptly attended to.

SAMUEL THOMPSON,
JOHN THOMPSON.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

About 60 years ago Elizabeth Blanch, who kept a public house in Sunderland, a sea-port town of England, having missed a sum of money, which she kept in an unlocked drawer in her store, accused a person of the name of Joseph Humphreys, a boatman, of the theft. She had given him change at an early hour in the morning, and having discovered her loss only a few minutes after, she entertained no doubt of his guilt. On this testimony, and several circumstances unfavourable to the accused, he was convicted at the next assizes at Durham, received sentence of death, and executed, notwithstanding the most solemn and reiterated protestations of innocence to the last.

Some time after, a sailor, on his return from a long voyage, fell sick at Plymouth, and having learnt the fate of Humphreys, he made a full and satisfactory confession of the robbery, which was published at the same time in all the newspapers. He stated that whilst handing the sails of a ship in the harbour, near to which Elizabeth Blanch lived, he saw her deposit her money in a drawer, and going on shore he called at her house for a pint of ale. While she was drawing it, he contrived to secure the money, with which he returned unsuspected to the vessel. As this transaction took place the night previous to the discovery, it escaped notice, and the prossecutrix unwarrantably charged it on Humphreys, who had unluckily been her visitor without any fraudulent design.

In the year 1736, Jonathan Bradford kept an inn in Oxfordshire, on the London road to Oxford. He bore an unexceptionable character. Mr. Hays, a gentleman of fortune, being on his way to Oxford, on a visit to a relation, put up at Bradford's, where he joined company with two gentlemen, with whom he supped, and in conversation unguardedly mentioned that he had then about him a large sum of money. In due time they retired to their respective chambers; the 2 gentlemen to a two bedded room, leaving, as is customary with many, a candle burning in the chimney corner. Some hours after they were in bed, one of the gentlemen being awake, thought he heard a deep groan in the adjoining chamber —and this being repeated, he softly awaked his friend. They listened together and the groans increasing, as of one dying, they both instantly arose, and proceeded silently to the door of the next chamber, from whence they heard the groans; and the door being ajar saw light in the room. They entered, but it is impossible to paint their consternation on perceiving a person weltering in his blood in the bed, and a man standing over him with a dark lanthorn in one hand and a knife in the other. The man seemed as petrified as themselves, but his terror carried with it all the terror of guilt! The gentlemen soon discovered that the person was the stranger with whom they had that night supped and that the man who was standing over him was their host. They seized Bradford directly, disarmed him, and charged him with being the murderer; he assumed by this time an air of innocence, positively denied the crime, and asserted that he came there with the same humane intention as themselves; for that hearing a noise, which was succeeded by a groaning, he got out of bed, struck a light, armed himself with a knife for his defence, and had but one moment entered the room before them.

These assertions were of little avail; he was kept in close custody till the morning, and then he was taken before a neighbouring justice of the peace. Bradford still denied the murder, nevertheless with such an apparent indication of guilt, that the justice hesitated not to make use of this extraordinary expression, on writing out his mittimus: "Mr. Bradford, either you or myself committed this murder."

This extraordinary affair was the conversation of the whole country, Bradford was tried and condemned over and over again, in every company. In the midst of all this predetermination came on the assizes at Oxford; Bradford was brought to trial, he pleaded not guilty. Nothing could be more strong than the evidence of the two gentlemen; they testified to the finding of Mr. Hayes murdered in his bed, Bradford at the side of the body with a light and a knife, that knife and the hand which held it bloody; that on their entering the room he betrayed all the signs of a guilty man, and that a few moments preceding they heard the groans of the deceased.

Bradford's defence on his trial was the same as before the gentlemen; that he had heard a noise; he suspected some villany transacting, he struck a light, and snatched a knife (the only weapon near him) to defend himself, and the terrors he discovered, were merely the terrors of humanity, the natural effects of innocence as well as guilt, on beholding such a horrid scene!

This defence, however, could be considered but as weak, contrasted with the several powerful circumstances against him. Never was circumstantial evidence more strong? There was little need left of comment from the judge in summing up the evidence! No room appeared for extenuation! And the jury brought in the verdict of guilty, even without going out of the box.

Bradford was executed shortly after, still declaring that he was not the murderer, nor privy to the murder of Mr. Hayes, but he died disbelieved by all.

Yet were those assertions not untrue! The murder was actually committed by Mr. Hayes' footman, who immediately on stabbing his man's chamber. The world owes this knowledge to a remorse of conscience in the footman, eighteen months after the execution of Bradford, on a bed of sickness; it was a death bed repentance, and by that death the law lost its victim.

It is much to be wished that this account could close here, but it cannot! Bradford though innocent, and not privy to the murder, was nevertheless the murderer in design. He had heard as well as the footman, what Mr. Hayes had declared at supper, as to his having a large sum of money about him, and he went to the chamber with the same diabolical intentions as the servant. He was struck with amazement! He could not believe his senses! And in turning back the bed clothes, to assure him of the fact, he in his agitation dropped his knife on the bleeding body, by which both his hand and the knife became bloody. These circumstances Bradford acknowledged to the clergyman who attended him after his sentence.

From the Elizabeth Town, N. J. Gaz. June 27.

BREACH OF PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.

We have been obligingly favoured with the following sketch by a gentleman who was present during the whole trial, and we feel confident that the view given of the subject is essentially correct.

At the late Middlesex circuit, holden at New-Brunswick by his honour the Chief Justice, came on the trial of Mary Edgar versus Thomas A. Hartwell, esq. for a breach of promise of marriage. The public interest was so greatly excited that at an early hour the court room was filled to overflowing, and so continued during the whole of the trial, which occupied the court two entire days. A similar action, it is understood, has not occupied the attention of our courts for upwards of twenty years, and we sincerely hope a much longer period may elapse before another shall occur.

The plaintiff was a young lady of genteel appearance, about 20 or 21 years of age, of respectable family and connexions, the daughter of a farmer in Middlesex county, who had been deceased a number of years—her mother a widow—She has a brother, a respectable merchant residing in England, who has been, it is understood, for a number of years the stay and support of the family. The defendant is a gentleman of the bar, of an age suitable for the plaintiff, of tolerable practice. It was shown that the defendant had paid his addresses to the plaintiff for about three years; that he accompanied her upon visits to her friends, and waited upon her at their weddings; that he was received and treated by the plaintiff, her friends and family as a suitor; that at the commencement of his attentions to the plaintiff, he resided in the neighborhood, and for a short time boarded in the family of the mother; that he afterwards removed to the distance of about twenty miles from the residence of her mother, and afterwards commenced the practice of the law. After his removal he was in the almost daily habit of writing to her—a correspondence was carried on between them for nearly two years, quite up to the time of marriage with his present wife. His last letter to the plaintiff being dated about a month previous to the marriage.

It was shown that he had paid his addresses to his present wife nearly a year previous to their marriage. With this lady he became acquainted on his removal before mentioned. She was possessed of those golden and attractive charms, which are apt in matrimonial concerns to have by for too preponderating an influence. The present possessions and future prospects of the lady were considerable. The plaintiff had no such weighty and attractive qualities to recommend her—she had nothing but her own personal charms and excellence of character. His letters to the number of twelve or fourteen, were read to the court and jury; from them it did not unequivocally and certainly appear that a promise of marriage had passed between the parties; but amidst the poetry, and fanciful and romantic descriptions of "trifles light as air," with which they abounded, there were passages from which it was evident they were not written to pass away an idle hour, or that they were even mere letters of friendship; but that there was more understood than met the eye, or than the writer wished committed upon paper.—Such effusions as the following frequently occurring: "The sighs which we in absence breathe"—"Our interviews have been a perpetual sweet of nectared bliss." As a postcript to one of the letters, was this distich:

> "Both rich and poor to Hymen's court repair,
> Then why not you and——— H."

But expressions of a mysterious nature concluded many of the letters, especially those written towards the conclusion of the correspondence, an explanation of which could probably have been afforded by the counterpart, but those letters were not produced, nor in any way accounted for. In addition to the above letters, in order to make out a promise of marriage, the plaintiff's mother proved a conversation which took place between the parties, and which she overheard; taking this conversation to have been as stated by the mother, it goes far in proving the promise. The contents of a destroyed letter were also offered in evidence: the contents of this letter, if truly stated, went directly to recognize a promise of marriage previously made; but there was considerable doubt whether this was the same letter that was proved to have been destroyed by the defendant.

The defendant's counsel relied upon the insufficiency of the evidence to support a promise of marriage. They also stated a number of contended that the present case was one of those.

The plaintiff's counsel relied upon the case as being clearly and fully proved—a case of an aggravated nature, for which there could be no justification, calling loudly for heavy and exemplary damages.

The jury went out about two hours, when they returned into court with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff of 1250 dollars. It is understood (in what way we know not) that the jury were at first considerably divided; that a very respectable number were in favour of 3000 dollars, while others were for giving a much less sum than the amount of the verdict actually rendered.

BAYONNE, (Spain) May 2.

A loan of forty millions of rials has been opened in Madrid, and will soon be filled owing to the conditions and securities it offers. The interest is one per cent. and the special mortgage is on the tax called the Royal Thirds. The shares are 4, 8 and 12,000 rials, and may be endorsed over. Subscribers will not be wanting, for our neighbours are going on in a way to merit the confidence and esteem of every one. Deputies from the several Juntas of the Provinces are assembling at Madrid, to unite with the Junta of the Capital. till the meeting of the cortes. This will increase the security of the nation.

Madrid advices of the 3d of May, announce that a squadron is about to sail from Cadiz for Venezuela and Carthagena, consisting of three frigates, a corvette, two brigantines, and other vessels. Some troops are to go out, but it is added, that the principal object of this expedition, is by a show of force to maintain negociations with the insurgents.

An article from Nuremberg, under date of May 5, says, "that never were such immense quantities of English manufactures and goods here as at the present fair. There is no room for them in the Warehouses, and the Hamburg and Dessian Jews are obliged to throw bales of calico into the street, that the purchasers may have room to move in the Warehouses. The ruin of our German manufactures is at hand; the Saxon manufacturers are in despair, for even their cheapest goods cannot maintain a competition with the English. All the ready money now goes into England."

Some alterations have been made in the new Russian Tariff, which is to aid the national manufactures.

Sir. R. Ker Porter, has arrived at Petersburgh, from a tour to Persia. He has presented to the Emperor Alexander, several remains of antiquity, among them are bricks from the ruins of Babylon, a piece of cement used in the building of that city, and a piece of marble from the ruins of Percipolis.

Phœnician Navigators.—A discovery was recently made in the environs of the Cape of Good Hope, which must be interesting to the historian; while digging a cave, the workmen found the hull of a vessel, constructed of cedar, which is said to be the remains of a Phœnician galley. If this appropriation be just, there is no longer room to doubt that the bold adventurers of Tyre had reached the south part of Africa.

New-York, July 1.

To the politeness of Captain Waite, of the ship Ann Maria, from Liverpool, who arrived last evening in the offing, we are indebted for Lloyd's Lists of the 16th, London papers to the 18th, and Liverpool to the 20th of May, inclusive. Great and splendid preparations were making for the coronation of the king, which, it was said, would take place on the 1st of August. The expense, it is said, will exceed one hundred thousand pounds.

On the 15th of May, in the Court of King's Bench, sentence was pronounced upon Hunt and the other defendants, convicted at the last assizes for York. A number of affidavits were offered by the parties, endeavouring to shew their innocence, and, if possible, to escape the lash of the law, but it would not do. Mr. Justice Baily, after hearing them read, proceeded to pronounce the judgment of the court on the several defendants. After commenting on the nature of the offence of which they had been convicted, the learned judge said, the judgment he was instructed to pronounce upon the several defendants was as follows:—The defendant, H. Hunt, was sentenced to be imprisoned two years and a half in his majesty's jail, at Ilchester, in the county of Somerset, and at the expiration of that term to find security for his good behaviour for five years, himself in 100*l*. and two sureties in 500*l*. each. The other defendants, J. Johnston, J. Healy, and S. Bamford, were severally sentenced to be imprisoned one year in Lincoln Castle, and at the expiration of that term to find security for their good behaviour for five years, themselves in 20 l. and two sureties in 100*l* each, and to be imprisoned till such security should be entered into.

Sir C. Wolseley and Parson Harrison were then brought up to receive the judgment of the court, which was, that Sir C. Wolseley should be imprisoned for one year and a half in his Majesty's jail at Abingdon, and at the expiration of that term to find security for five years, himself in 1000*l*. and two sureties in 500*l*. and that Harrison should be imprisoned at Chester for one year and a half, and at the expiration of that time to find securities for five years, himself in 200, and two sureties in 100*l* each, to their respective places of confinement. Harrison quitted London on Monday night, accompanied by Mr. Hudson, constable of Chester Castle, and arrived in that city on Wednesday night. The whole period of imprisonment to which Harrison is sentenced is three years and a half.

Miscellaneous.

From the N. York Com. Adv.

WATTY COX.—We copy the following letter from a late Dublin paper. The author we believe is yet a resident of this city. It serves as a specimen of the gratitude the writer entertains towards a city and a people, from whom he derives his livelihood.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Walter Cox, dated New-York, Dec. 18, 1819.

"MY DEAR——I am as uneasy as possible by remaining here, and am determined to leave this hideous climate and most detestable race of rascals, who call it their own, and boast of it as a gift from heaven, though the wretches are hardly out of school when they die of old age, or are swept away by the Yellow Fever, that has not spared any one within the range of its devouring limits on the sea-coast from Boston to New-Orleans. The last summer, I escaped by flying to Quebec, a distance of 562 miles, and from its lofty walls I despatched a letter to you on the 12th of October and arrived here on the 11th of November; to see the sickly wretched yankees, removing the fences that included a considerable portion of this city, when in their fright they attempted to put limits to the common enemy, as judiciously as the wise men of Gotham, who attempted to keep in the sparrows by placing a strong paling round their town. They have perished in thousands, and in my opinion, the Yellow Fever would confer a blessing on the human race, by continuing its capers. I wrote by the Erin, that sailed for Dublin on the 15th September, and am afraid you did not receive it, as Wm. D. the carpenter, nephew of Mr.——— of Essex street, was in the vessel, which we believe here, and fear, has foundered at sea, a casualty they must be liable to who come here to get estates.

"A work of interesting curiosity, I have almost ready, to consist of two volumes, which, if I live until summer, shall be put in the Irish press. I have seen Mr. O'Connell's letter to the Catholics, and have got it printed here. There never was a better or more seasonable state paper, a dignity it most eminently deserves. Remember me to your child; to B. Tell Mr. James Crosbie, Attorney General to Toll houses, that I hope he is alive and well, but if he is dead say nothing about it, until I can call in person.

Your's truly,

"WALTER COX."

"A considerable number of Dublin men are here, Captains, Colonels, &c. who ranaway from Generals D'Evereux and L'Estrange, and from the burning sands of Magaritta, famine and Yellow Fever, which the orators and prophets of the Board of Health, for taking care of sick friends at a distance, forgot to predict."

PENSIONERS' MUSTER.

On Wednesday, the 28th ult. a batallion of the Invalid Corps of Revolutionary Pensioners mustered in Court street, Salem, Mass. to make oath of their poverty, before the Hon. Judge Wetmore. After the ceremonies at the court house had passed, a detachment of these veterans partook of refreshments at the sign of the Eagle, and gave the following sentiments on the occasion:

1. Bunker Hill—A monument to Putnam, Prescott and Warren, and to the valor of New England Militia.
2. President Monroe—He bled for his country at Trenton, and he has a heart that can feel as well as bleed.
3. The memory of Gen. Washington—We claim no higher honor than to be called his fellow soldiers.
4. The "bloody 8th" Massachusetts Regiment—In every battle "the first in and the last out."
5. Col. John Brooks, of the 8th—At Bunker Hill, Saratoga and Monmouth, he shewed himself as terrible in battle as he is beloved in peace
6. The memory of our Generals Lincoln and Knox—Worthy of Massachusetts.
7. Our surviving selves—We have lived to see posterity—may posterity not forget us.
8. Yorktown & Saratoga—The day has been when we could lead armies captive—we now surrender to armies none can resist—Palsy Rheumatism, Asthma, Poverty, Lameness, Blindness, and a host of ills that beset us like armed men.
9. The 28th of June, 1778—At Monmouth Court-house we made marks with our bayonets—The 28th of June, 1820, at Salem Court-house we handled a goose quill to prove our poverty.
10. The memory of Gen. Wayne—The hero of Stony Point.
11. Gen. Rufus Putnam, of the 3d—The soldiers friend—the pride of the army; may the rest of his days be happy.
12. The memory of Gens. Greene and Morgan—A match for Cornwallis and Tarleton.
13. The evening of our days—After our sleepless nights on the cold ground, our hard and toilsome marches, and our Valley Forge encampments, may the sunshine of public favour fall on our hoary locks till the end of life's campaign.

Baltimore, June 24.

Yesterday a merchant of this city received a letter from Nashville, containing among others, three notes, purporting to be of the bank of the U. States, one for five hundred dollars, and the other two [illegible] them only bank clerks, or persons very much in the habit of accurately examining bank notes, can detect them.

The expenses of the Coronation of George IV, exceed 100,000 pounds sterling. Here is food for the Hunts' and Cobbetts' to chew upon.

SEASONABLE ADVICE.

A correspondent (says the Boston Paladium) strongly recommends the more free use of the herb Sage, as a corrective of coldness in the stomach, and indigestion, promoting a suitable appetite, improving the sight and hearing, and generally conducing to sight and long life. These statements are supported by References to ancient writers and instances of longevity.

"The best preparations, (says the Edinburgh Dispensatory, is the infusion of the dry leaves, drank as tea; or a tincture of extract made with rectified spirit, taken in proper doses; these contain the whole virtues of the sage; the distilled waters and essential oil, only is warmth and aromatic quality."

A friend yesterday presented us with a box, containing twelve unripe Scotch Gooseberries, raised in Mr. Michael Floy's Garden, averaging about three inches in circumference, the largest of which measured three inches and three eighths, and an inch and five eighths in length. A beautiful new potatoe, raised in an adjoining field, from English seed, was also received, which measured eight inches and an eighth in circumference.

ANECDOTE.

A mechanic known to be an excellent workman (but unfortunately fond of spending his time at any other place than where his business lay) was lately complaining of the times. A grave old gentleman present, turned to him and said. "You are accounted a very ingenious mechanic—if the times are so much out of order, I think you had better go to your shop and try to mend them."

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

About 60 years ago Elizabeth Blanch, who kept a public house in Sunderland, a sea-port town of England, having missed a sum of money, which she kept in an unlocked drawer in her store, accused a person of the name of Joseph Humphreys, a boatman, of the theft. She had given him change at an early hour in the morning, and having discovered her loss only a few minutes after, she entertained no doubt of his guilt. On this testimony, and several circumstances unfavourable to the accused, he was convicted at the next assizes at Durham, received sentence of death, and executed, notwithstanding the most solemn and reiterated protestations of innocence to the last.

Some time after, a sailor, on his return from a long voyage, fell sick at Plymouth, and having learnt the fate of Humphreys, he made a full and satisfactory confession of the robbery, which was published at the same time in all the newspapers. He stated that whilst handing the sails of a ship in the harbour, near to which Elizabeth Blanch lived, he saw her deposit her money in a drawer, and going on shore he called at her house for a pint of ale. While she was drawing it, he contrived to secure the money, with which he returned unsuspected to the vessel. As this transaction took place the night previous to the discovery, it escaped notice, and the prossecutrix unwarrantably charged it on Humphreys, who had unluckily been her visitor without any fraudulent design.

In the year 1736, Jonathan Bradford kept an inn in Oxfordshire, on the London road to Oxford. He bore an unexceptionable character. Mr. Hays, a gentleman of fortune, being on his way to Oxford, on a visit to a relation, put up at Bradford's, where he joined company with two gentlemen, with whom he supped, and in conversation unguardedly mentioned that he had then about him a large sum of money. In due time they retired to their respective chambers; the 2 gentlemen to a two bedded room, leaving, as is customary with many, a candle burning in the chimney corner. Some hours after they were in bed, one of the gentlemen being awake, thought he heard a deep groan in the adjoining chamber—and this being repeated, he softly awaked his friend. They listened together and the groans increasing, as of one dying, they both instantly arose, and proceeded silently to the door of the next chamber, from whence they heard the groans; and the door being ajar saw light in the room. They entered, but it is impossible to paint their consternation on perceiving a person weltering in his blood in the bed, and a man standing over him with a dark lanthorn in one hand and a knife in the other. The man seemed as petrified as themselves, but his terror carried with it all the terror of guilt! The gentlemen soon discovered that the person was the stranger with whom they had that night supped and that the man who was standing over him was their host. They seized Bradford directly, disarmed him, and charged him with being the murderer; he assumed by this time an air of innocence, positively denied the crime, and asserted that he came there with the same humane intention as themselves; for that hearing a noise, which was succeeded by a groaning, he got out of bed, struck a light, armed himself with a knife for his defence, and had but one moment entered the room before them.

These assertions were of little avail; he was kept in close custody till the morning, and then he was taken before a neighbouring justice of the peace. Bradford still denied the murder, nevertheless with such an apparent indication of guilt, that the justice hesitated not to make use of this extraordinary expression, on writing out his mittimus: "Mr. Bradford, either you or myself committed this murder."

This extraordinary affair was the conversation of the whole country, Bradford was tried and condemned over and over again, in every company. In the midst of all this predetermination came on the assizes at Oxford; Bradford was brought to trial, he pleaded not guilty. Nothing could be more strong than the evidence of the two gentlemen; they testified to the finding of Mr. Hayes murdered in his bed, Bradford at the side of the body with a light and a knife, that knife and the hand which held it bloody; that on their entering the room he betrayed all the signs of a guilty man, and that a few moments preceding they heard the groans of the deceased.

Bradford's defence on his trial was the same as before the gentlemen; that he had heard a noise; he suspected some villany transacting, he struck a light, and snatched a knife (the only weapon near him) to defend himself, and the terrors he discovered, were merely the terrors of humanity, the natural effects of innocence as well as guilt, on beholding such a horrid scene!

This defence, however, could be considered but as weak, contrasted with the several powerful circumstances against him. Never was circumstantial evidence more strong? There was little need left of comment from the judge in summing up the evidence! No room appeared for extenuation! And the jury brought in the verdict of guilty, even without going out of the box.

Bradford was executed shortly after, still declaring that he was not the murderer, nor privy to the murder of Mr. Hayes, but he died disbelieved by all.

Yet were those assertions not untrue! The murder was actually committed by Mr. Hayes' footman, who immediately on stabbing his man's chamber. The world owes this knowledge to a remorse of conscience in the footman, eighteen months after the execution of Bradford, on a bed of sickness; it was a death bed repentance, and by that death the law lost its victim.

It is much to be wished that this account could close here, but it cannot! Bradford though innocent, and not privy to the murder, was nevertheless the murderer in design. He had heard as well as the footman, what Mr. Hayes had declared at supper, as to his having a large sum of money about him, and he went to the chamber with the same diabolical intentions as the servant. He was struck with amazement! He could not believe his senses! And in turning back the bed clothes, to assure him of the fact, he in his agitation dropped his knife on the bleeding body, by which both his hand and the knife became bloody. These circumstances Bradford acknowledged to the clergyman who attended him after his sentence.

BREACH OF PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.

We have been obligingly favoured with the following sketch by a gentleman who was present during the whole trial, and we feel confident that the view given of the subject is essentially correct.

At the late Middlesex circuit, holden at New-Brunswick by his honour the Chief Justice, came on the trial of Mary Edgar versus Thomas A. Hartwell, esq. for a breach of promise of marriage. The public interest was so greatly excited that at an early hour the court room was filled to overflowing, and so continued during the whole of the trial, which occupied the court two entire days. A similar action, it is understood, has not occupied the attention of our courts for upwards of twenty years, and we sincerely hope a much longer period may elapse before another shall occur.

The plaintiff was a young lady of genteel appearance, about 20 or 21 years of age, of respectable family and connexions, the daughter of a farmer in Middlesex county, who had been deceased a number of years—her mother a widow—She has a brother, a respectable merchant residing in England, who has been, it is understood, for a number of years the stay and support of the family. The defendant is a gentleman of the bar, of an age suitable for the plaintiff, of tolerable practice. It was shown that the defendant had paid his addresses to the plaintiff for about three years; that he accompanied her upon visits to her friends, and waited upon her at their weddings; that he was received and treated by the plaintiff, her friends and family as a suitor; that at the commencement of his attentions to the plaintiff, he resided in the neighborhood, and for a short time boarded in the family of the mother; that he afterwards removed to the distance of about twenty miles from the residence of her mother, and afterwards commenced the practice of the law. After his removal he was in the almost daily habit of writing to her—a correspondence was carried on between them for nearly two years, quite up to the time of marriage with his present wife. His last letter to the plaintiff being dated about a month previous to the marriage.

It was shown that he had paid his addresses to his present wife nearly a year previous to their marriage. With this lady he became acquainted on his removal before mentioned. She was possessed of those golden and attractive charms, which are apt in matrimonial concerns to have by for too preponderating an influence. The present possessions and future prospects of the lady were considerable. The plaintiff had no such weighty and attractive qualities to recommend her—she had nothing but her own personal charms and excellence of character. His letters to the number of twelve or fourteen, were read to the court and jury; from them it did not unequivocally and certainly appear that a promise of marriage had passed between the parties; but amidst the poetry, and fanciful and romantic descriptions of "trifles light as air," with which they abounded, there were passages from which it was evident they were not written to pass away an idle hour, or that they were even mere letters of friendship; but that there was more understood than met the eye, or than the writer wished committed upon paper.—Such effusions as the following frequently occurring: "The sighs which we in absence breathe"—"Our interviews have been a perpetual sweet of nectared bliss." As a postcript to one of the letters, was this distich:

> "Both rich and poor to Hymen's court repair,
> Then why not you and—— —— H."

But expressions of a mysterious nature concluded many of the letters, especially those written towards the conclusion of the correspondence, an explanation of which could probably have been afforded by the counterpart, but those letters were not produced, nor in any way accounted for. In addition to the above letters, in order to make out a promise of marriage, the plaintiff's mother proved a conversation which took place between the parties, and which she overheard; taking this conversation to have been as stated by the mother, it goes far in proving the promise. The contents of a destroyed letter were also offered in evidence: the contents of this letter, if truly stated, went directly to recognize a promise of marriage previously made; but there was considerable doubt whether this was the same letter that was proved to have been destroyed by the defendant.

The defendant's counsel relied upon the insufficiency of the evidence to support a promise of marriage. They also stated a number of contended that the present case was one of those.

The plaintiff's counsel relied upon the case as being clearly and fully proved—a case of an aggravated nature, for which there could be no justification, calling loudly for heavy and exemplary damages.

The jury went out about two hours, when they returned into court with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff of 1250 dollars. It is understood (in what way we know not) that the jury were at first considerably divided; that a very respectable number were in favour of 3000 dollars, while others were for giving a much less sum than the amount of the verdict actually rendered.

BAYONNE, (Spain) May 2.

A loan of forty millions of rials has been opened in Madrid, and will soon be filled owing to the conditions and securities it offers. The interest is one per cent. and the special mortgage is on the tax called the Royal Thirds. The shares are 4, 8 and 12,000 rials, and may be endorsed over. Subscribers will not be wanting, for our neighbours are going on in a way to merit the confidence and esteem of every one. Deputies from the several Junias of the Provinces are assembling at Madrid, to unite with the Junta of the Capital. till the meeting of the cortes. This will increase the security of the nation.

Madrid advices of the 3d of May, announce that a squadron is about to sail from Cadiz for Venezuela and Carthagena, consisting of three frigates, a corvette, two brigantines, and other vessels. Some troops are to go out, but it is added, that the principal object of this expedition, is by a show of force to maintain negociations with the insurgents.

An article from Nuremberg, under date of May 5, says, "that never were such immense quantities of English manufactures and goods here as at the present fair. There is no room for them in the Warehouses, and the Hamburg and Dessian Jews are obliged to throw bales of calico into the street, that the purchasers may have room to move in the Warehouses. The ruin of our German manufactures is at hand; the Saxon manufacturers are in despair, for even their cheapest goods cannot maintain a competition with the English. All the ready money now goes into England."

Some alterations have been made in the new Russian Tariff, which is to aid the national manufactures.

Sir R. Ker Porter, has arrived at Petersburgh, from a tour to Persia. He has presented to the Emperor Alexander, several remains of antiquity, among them are bricks from the ruins of Babylon, a piece of cement used in the building of that city, and a piece of marble from the ruins of Percipolis.

Phœnician Navigator.—A discovery was recently made in the environs of the Cape of Good Hope, which must be interesting to the historian; while digging a cave, the workmen found the hull of a vessel, constructed of cedar, which is said to be the remains of a Phœnician galley. If this appropriation be just, there is no longer room to doubt that the bold adventurers of Tyre had reached the south part of Africa.

New-York, July 1.

To the politeness of Captain Waite, of the ship Ann Maria, from Liverpool, who arrived last evening in the offing, we are indebted for Lloyd's Lists of the 16th, London papers to the 18th, and Liverpool to the 20th of May, inclusive. Great and splendid preparations were making for the coronation of the king, which, it was said, would take place on the 1st of August. The expense, it is said, will exceed one hundred thousand pounds.

On the 15th of May, in the Court of King's Bench, sentence was pronounced upon Hunt and the other defendants, convicted at the last assizes for York. A number of affidavits were offered by the parties, endeavouring to shew their innocence, and, if possible, to escape the lash of the law, but it would not do. Mr. Justice Baily, after hearing them read, proceeded to pronounce the judgment of the court on the several defendants. After commenting on the nature of the offence of which they had been convicted, the learned judge said, the judgment he was instructed to pronounce upon the several defendants was as follows:—The defendant, H. Hunt, was sentenced to be imprisoned two years and a half in his majesty's jail, at Ilchester, in the county of Somerset, and at the expiration of that term to find security for his good behaviour for five years, himself in 100*l.* and two sureties in 500*l.* each. The other defendants, J. Johnston, J. Healy, and S. Bamford, were severally sentenced to be imprisoned one year in Lincoln Castle, and at the expiration of that term to find security for their good behaviour for five years, themselves in 20 l. and two sureties in 100*l* each, and to be imprisoned till such security should be entered into.

Sir C. Wolseley and Parson Harrison were then brought up to receive the judgment of the court, which was, that Sir C. Wolseley should be imprisoned for one year and a half in his Majesty's jail at Abingdon, and at the expiration of that term to find security for five years, himself in 1000*l.* and two sureties in 500*l.* and that Harrison should be imprisoned at Chester for one year and a half, and at the expiration of that time to find securities for five years, himself in £200, and two sureties in 100*l.* each.

Sir Charles Wolseley were con- to their respective places of confinement. Harrison quitted London on Monday night, accompanied by Mr. Hudson, constable of Chester Castle, and arrived in that city on Wednesday night. The whole period of imprisonment to which Harrison is sentenced is three years and a half.

WATTY COX.—We copy the following letter from a late Dublin paper. The author we believe is yet a resident of this city. It serves as a specimen of the gratitude the writer entertains towards a city and a people, from whom he derives his livelihood.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Walter Cox, dated New-York, Dec. 18, 1819.

"MY DEAR——I am as uneasy as possible by remaining here, and am determined to leave this hideous climate and most detestable race of rascals, who call it their own, and boast of it as a gift from heaven, though the wretches are hardly out of school when they die of old age, or are swept away by the Yellow Fever, that has not spared any one within the range of its devouring limits on the sea-coast from Boston to New-Orleans. The last summer, I escaped by flying to Quebec, a distance of 562 miles, and from its lofty walls I despatched a letter to you on the 12th of October and arrived here on the 11th of November; to see the sickly wretched yankees, removing the fences that included a considerable portion of this city, when in their fright they attempted to put limits to the common enemy, as judiciously as the wise men of Gotham, who attempted to keep in the sparrows by placing a strong railing round their town. They have perished in thousands, and in my opinion, the Yellow Fever would confer a blessing on the human race, by continuing its capers. I wrote by the Erin, that sailed for Dublin on the 15th September, and am afraid you did not receive it, as Wm. D. the carpenter, nephew of Mr.—— of Essex street, was in the vessel, which we believe here, and fear, has foundered at sea, a casualty they must be liable to who come here to get estates.

"A work of interesting curiosity, I have almost ready, to consist of two volumes, which, if I live until summer, shall be put in the Irish press. I have seen Mr. O'Connell's letter to the Catholics, and have got it printed here. There never was a better or more seasonable state paper, a dignity it most eminently deserves. Remember me to your child; to B. Tell Mr. James Crosbie, Attorney General to Toll houses, that I hope he is alive and well, but if he is dead say nothing about it, until I can call in person.

Your's truly,

"WALTER COX."

"A considerable number of Dublin men are here, Captains, Colonels, &c. who ranaway from Generals D'Evereux and L'Estrange, and from the burning sands of Magaritta, famine and Yellow Fever, which the orators and prophets of the Board of Health, for taking care of sick friends at a distance, forgot to predict."

PENSIONERS' MUSTER.

On Wednesday, the 28th ult. a batallion of the Invalid Corps of Revolutionary Pensioners mustered in Court street, Salem, Mass. to make oath of their poverty, before the Hon. Judge Wetmore. After the ceremonies at the court house had passed, a detachment of these veterans partook of refreshments at the sign of the Eagle, and gave the following sentiments on the occasion:

1. Bunker Hill—A monument to Putnam, Prescott and Warren, and to the valor of New England Militia.

2. President Monroe—He bled for his country at Trenton, and he has a heart that can feel as well as bleed.

3. The memory of Gen. Washington—We claim no higher honor than to be called his fellow soldiers.

4. The "bloody 8th" Massachusetts Regiment—In every battle "the first in and the last out."

5. Col. John Brooks, of the 8th—At Bunker Hill, Saratoga and Monmouth, he shewed himself as terrible in battle as he is beloved in peace

6. The memory of our Generals Lincoln and Knox—Worthy of Massachusetts.

7. Our surviving selves—We have lived to see posterity—may posterity not forget us.

8. Yorktown & Saratoga—The day has been when we could lead armies captive—we now surrender to armies none can resist—Palsy Rheumatism, Asthma, Poverty, Lameness, Blindness, and a host of ills that beset us like armed men.

9. The 28th of June, 1778—At Monmouth Court-house we made marks with our bayonets—The 28th of June, 1820, at Salem Court-house we handled a goose quill to prove our poverty.

10. The memory of Gen. Wayne—The hero of Stony Point.

11. Gen. Rufus Putnam, of the 3d—The soldiers friend—the pride of the army; may the rest of his days be happy.

12. The memory of Gens. Greene and Morgan—A match for Cornwallis and Tarleton.

13. The evening of our days—After our sleepless nights on the cold ground, our hard and toilsome marches, and our Valley Forge encampments, may the sunshine of public favour fall on our hoary locks till the end of life's campaign.

GAZETTE.

EDITED BY MORGAN NEVILLE.

MONDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1820.

WE have hitherto been perfectly silent on the subject of the next congressional election, because both the gentlemen now before the public are men to whom we are personally attached, & of whose usefulness, every individual is fully impressed. But under the existing state of public feeling, it would be criminal in us as editors to remain silent any longer. Two such men as Baldwin & Wilkins, cannot, ought not to be brought into collision; there is a general gloom pervading the countenance of almost every individual interested in the welfare of our district, ever since it was announced that Mr. Wilkins was not to return to Harrisburgh, to prosecute the great design of state improvement in which he acted so conspicuous a part at the last session. Mortification has been exhibited by almost every reflecting man ever since it was discovered that notwithstanding the laborious and able exertions of Henry Baldwin in favour of manufactures, he is still to be assailed by the murmur of party opposition. The district composed of Allegheny and Butler has occasion at this moment for all the talents and for all the influence it is possessed of; it would be little less than madness, voluntarily to deprive ourselves of a particle of the power which we have so gloriously acquired both in the state and general government. From their prominent standing in society, from their long and tried utility, and from their devotion to the true interests of their country, Wilkins and Baldwin have become identified with it; they have nobly consented in some measure to abandon their private affairs, to superintend the public concerns, and at this momentous crisis when every good citizen calls out for unanimity in order to produce an alteration in the present dreadful state of affairs, these men must not suffer any public altercation to take place. The situation of representatives in the state and general governments are equally honourable and equally useful, and the champions of the tariff and of the appropriation bill must march with equal steps in the path of reputation. We hesitate not to say that if Henry Baldwin return not to congress the subject of manufactures will go to rest in that house; and without wishing to derogate from the merit and talents of any of the gentlemen in the state legislature, we are bold to say that the influence and talents of William Wilkins were a principal cause of the success of the appropriation bill in the lower house. With these sentiments & having felt the pulse of the major part of the county, we say to Mr. Wilkins, "Sir we cannot dispense with your services in the state legislature; we repose confidently upon Henry Baldwin to consummate his important designs in congress; to you we look with equal confidence to gain us something in the great cause of internal improvement. You have put your hand to the plough, it is too late to look back, and it would be disgraceful to quit the field at the moment we are looking for victory. You are pledged to us by every honourable tie to return to Harrisburgh; the people wish it, and our interests require it; you cannot, as a good citizen you dare not refuse to redeem your pledge."

PUBLIC MEETING.

Notice was given in the last Statesman and by hand bills in various parts of the town that a meeting of the young men of the city of Pittsburgh, without respect to party, would be held on Friday evening last, for the purpose of selecting such candidates for the legislature as should receive their cordial support. It would seem that the result of the meeting was such that those most instrumental in calling it have declined to publish the proceedings. We have been informed by gentlemen who were present that the meeting was very numerous and respectable, consisting of at least 70 individuals, Dr. Gazzam in the Chair, and Benjamin Evans Secretary. The various candidates for office heretofore brought before the public were put in nomination and the following was the result of the voting.

For Assembly,
WILLIAM WILKINS,
RICHARD BIDDLE,
WM. B. FOSTER,
JOHN GILMORE, of Butler.
For Commissioner,

Celebration of the 4th.

The 44th anniversary of American Independence was celebrated at Elizabethtown, Allegheny county, in a manner that evinced the patriotic spirit of the citizens of that place and its vicinity. A number of respectable inhabitants of Washington and Westmoreland counties, joined in the celebration, together with a large number of ladies, whose tender bosoms throbbed in unison with the patriotic feelings of their parents and husbands. At one o'clock, the procession moved from Elizabethtown to an elegant arbour prepared for the occasion. Gen. John Wilson was chosen President, and Capt. James Brice, Vice-President of the day. The Declaration of Independence [illegible] William Stewart, of West- [illegible] sumptuous dinner, prepared under the superintendance of Major John Walker. After the cloth was removed, and the ladies had retired to the arbour, a number of patriotic toasts were drank, accompanied by discharges from artillery and Captain Morton's rifle corps. At 5 o'clock, the company returned, and the celebration was concluded by a splendid Ball.

TOASTS.

1. The Day we celebrate—Ever memorable and joyful to the free and enlightened sons of Columbia.

2. The U. States—May they ever revolve round the sun of freedom and gravitate to the centre of liberty, and the kingdoms of Europe be their satellites.

3. The Heroes of '76—May we long enjoy the privileges, which at the expense of their blood and treasure, they have transmitted unto us.

4. The Constitution of the United States—May it never be given up, but carry us safe over the sea of politics, guided by the helm of republicanism, between the rocks of aristocracy and monarchy, and the Charybdis of jacobinism and anarchy.

5. May falsehood, calumny, discord and faction forever cease, and every true American unite in supporting the liberty, independence and interest of the nation.

6. May the love of power never extinguish in us the love of liberty and equality.

8. Our Army and Navy—May health and honour attend them, and may they reap glory by observing the noble laws of war—away with gun-boats and torpedoes, when the appearance of the Franklin causes terror to nations.

9. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania—May it flourish by the wisdom and integrity of its rulers, and the vigilance, virtue and economy of its citizens.

10. The patriots of South America—May their struggles be crowned with independence, and their independence established on the principle of equal rights and patriotic virtue.

11. The Lion of England—May the Eagle of freedom pick out his eyes, the Sampson of freedom slay him, and the industrious bees of agriculture, commerce and manufactures of the United States, feed upon honey out of his dead carcase.

12. The 39th toast from the Halifax Free Press—May it be burnt to a cinder on a gridiron of United States' cannon, and the ashes preserved in Packenham spirits.

13. Henry Baldwin, esq.—The time is before us when we hope the wisdom of the district will not suffer the prating of triflers to deprive us of the benefit of his talents, integrity and real economy.

14. The wax-figure of general Jackson, lately hung in Canady—The people of that country may watch and pray, lest the officer thereby represented might have occasion to appear there in person.

15. Our next legislature—May it be composed of men who approve of the principles of the illustrious Washington, which carried us through the storms of war to glory, honor, and prosperity—the admiration of the old world & the pride of the new.

16. The legal manufactures in the United States of men and merchandize, no importation, no contraband trade.

17. The appraisement law—An illegitimate child, may its operations be confined to its parents and friends.

18. The Fair Sex—May the enchanting suavity of their manners be productive of wives for bachelors and happiness for husbands.

VOLUNTEERS.

After the President and Vice-president had retired.

By S. Walker—Gen. John Wilson, president of the day.

By W. Stewart,—Captain James Brice—his patriotic spirit merits the applause of every citizen.

By Major John Walker—Agriculture, commerce, and the passage of the Tariff Bill, the only true source of American prosperity.

By Garret Wall, esq.—The Tariff bill—May every son of America say, Baldwin is right.

By J. Morrison—The citizens of Elizabeth town and vicinity—May the patriotism of their sons be only equalled by the virtue and beauty of their daughters.

By John M'Farlain. The 4th of July, 1776 The sun that then rose found us struggling for liberty; may it on each return of this glorious day find us grateful for our freedom; and if ever that day arrives when this union shall be severed, may it set forever bathed in the blood of Americans.

By Dr. James A. Stewart. Henry Baldwin, the faithful servant of the people—With his tariff nailed to the mast, he will ride safely through the storm of faction, unhurt by the pitiful attacks of demagogues and office hunters.

Aljernon S. Mountain The patriots of '76—May the recording angel never drop a tear upon the foul act that denies them support, but permit it to be regestered on the records of heaven, a stigma on the characters of the penurious miscreants who advocate it.

PARDON AND REPRIEVE.

Two of the prisoners who were convicted of piracy, at the last term of the district court of the United States, in this city, and who were sentenced to die on the same day Furlong was executed, but respited by the president of the United States, to the 28th of the present month, were yesterday discharged from confinement by the marshal of this district, by order of the president. Their names are David Bower and Henry Matthews. They have received full pardon. Ralph Clintock who was also under sentence of death, and who was to have been executed on Wednesday next, has been, by the president, respited for an indefinite period. He is to remain in close confinement.

EXTRAORDINARY ESCAPE.

On Wednesday afternoon, a party of gentlemen to the number of 37, going from New Haven to the Light House in a pleasure boat, were met about half way down the harbour by the steam boat Fulton, Captain Law, from New London, who was going up the harbour under full sail and a powerful steam. From some miscalculation on the part of the person steering the sail boat, in attempting to clear the steam boat, the latter struck her in the middle, and passed instantly over her. Thirty of the persons in the boat caught hold of the steam boat's bowsprit and bow, and saved themselves—seven of them passed directly under her bottom, and came up astern; but by the most extraordinary exertions from the steam boat, they were all saved, though some of them were much exhausted. One of the gentlemen had his hand broken, and one was very much injured. A child of about seven years of age was on board, who had presence of mind enough to seize hold of a rope, and in that way was preserved. No blame was imputable to captain Law for the accident; every exertion was made by him and his men for the preservation of the persons in the boat.

Yellow Fever at Middletown, [Con.]—From letters published in the Evening Post, yesterday, it appears there have been thirteen decided cases of Yellow Fever, accompanied with the black vomit, at Middletown, and one in the vicinity of Hartford. No new cases had occurred for several days, and it is hoped that the contagion will spread no farther.

BEDFORD, June 23.

On Thursday last Patrick Cassidy, who resided at Sideling Hill, in this county, in a fit of insanity, as it is supposed, murdered a cousin of his, named Patrick M'Cue, who resided with him. He threw the dead body of his cousin into a small run near the house, covered his face and breast with stones, and laid in his favourite dog which he also killed, near the head of the dead man. He then made off through the woods, without coat, hat or shoes. When he arrived at the old Crossings bridge, after conversing some time with a Mr. Blackhart, he lay down and fell asleep; during his sleep he began to cry murder! Blackhart asked him who he had murdered? He replied Patrick, and they would find him in the spring run, with stones on his face and breast. When he awoke he would say nothing, but started off, saying he was going to Newry. That night Blackhart could not rest; he was disturbed in his sleep by what Cassidy had told him—and before day went off to Mr. J. Dennison and got him to go along. They found the murdered man and dog as above described. Cassidy was followed, and apprehended yesterday morning, at a man's house of his own name, near Newry in Huntingdon county, and brought to our prison, where he now is. His appearance is haggard and melancholy, and his feet and legs are lacerated in a most shocking manner.

MACKINAW, June 20.

"A letter was received some short time since at Chicago, from Major Marston, commanding Fort Armstrong. It appears that the express communication had been cut off, and that the Major availed himself of a Sack Indian to communicate with Major Baker, at Chicago. He states that two men had been killed by the Indians—that they had attempted to cut off his provisions, boats, &c. but failed—that they had made something like a regular attack upon the fort, but were repulsed. His command was too small to think of leaving the fort in presence of the enemy. He had applied to Colonel Leavenworth for aid, but the Colonel's command was too small to afford any.

"The fact is that great apprehensions are entertained for the safety of all the posts west of Green Bay and Chicago. There are so few men at these places that it must be a great temptation to those Indians, who, no doubt, view with concern the rapid strides we are making in their country.

"There are some three or four hundred Indians at this port on their way to Drummond's Island, for the purpose of receiving presents from their great father, George IV. I am told they receive annually, from $10 to 50,000 worth of goods from the British officers at that place."—Buffalo paper.

GAZETTE.

EDITED BY MORGAN NEVILLE.

MONDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1820.

WE have hitherto been perfectly silent on the subject of the next congressional election, because both the gentlemen now before the public are men to whom we are personally attached, & of whose usefulness, every individual is fully impressed. But under the existing state of public feeling, it would be criminal in us as editors to remain silent any longer. Two such men as Baldwin & Wilkins, cannot, ought not to be brought into collision; there is a general gloom pervading the countenance of almost every individual interested in the welfare of our district, ever since it was announced that Mr. Wilkins was not to return to Harrisburgh, to prosecute the great design of state improvement in which he acted so conspicuous a part at the last session. Mortification has been exhibited by almost every reflecting man ever since it was discovered that notwithstanding the laborious and able exertions of Henry Baldwin in favour of manufactures, he is still to be assailed by the murmur of party opposition. The district composed of Allegheny and Butler has occasion at this moment for all the talents and for all the influence it is possessed of; it would be little less than madness, voluntarily to deprive ourselves of a particle of the power which we have so gloriously acquired both in the state and general government. From their prominent standing in society, from their long and tried utility, and from their devotion to the true interests of their country, Wilkins and Baldwin have become identified with it; they have nobly consented in some measure to abandon their private affairs, to superintend the public concerns, and at this momentous crisis when every good citizen calls out for unanimity in order to produce an alteration in the present dreadful state of affairs, these men must not suffer any public altercation to take place. The situation of representatives in the state and general governments are equally honourable and equally useful, and the champions of the tariff and of the appropriation bill must march with equal steps in the path of reputation. We hesitate not to say that if Henry Baldwin return not to congress the subject of manufactures will go to rest in that house; and without wishing to derogate from the merit and talents of any of the gentlemen in the state legislature, we are bold to say that the influence and talents of William Wilkins were a principal cause of the success of the appropriation bill in the lower house. With these sentiments & having felt the pulse of the major part of the county, we say to Mr. Wilkins, "Sir we cannot dispense with your services in the state legislature; we repose confidently upon Henry Baldwin to consummate his important designs in congress; to you we look with equal confidence to gain us something in the great cause of internal improvement. You have put your hand to the plough, it is too late to look back, and it would be disgraceful to quit the field at the moment we are looking for victory. You are pledged to us by every honourable tie to return to Harrisburgh; the people wish it, and our interests require it; you cannot, as a good citizen you dare not refuse to redeem your pledge."

COMMUNICATED.

PUBLIC MEETING.

Notice was given in the last Statesman and by hand bills in various parts of the town that a meeting of the young men of the city of Pittsburgh, without respect to party, would be held on Friday evening last, for the purpose of selecting such candidates for the legislature as should receive their cordial support. It would seem that the result of the meeting was such that those most instrumental in calling it have declined to publish the proceedings. We have been informed by gentlemen who were present that the meeting was very numerous and respectable, consisting of at least 70 individuals, Dr. Gazzam in the Chair, and Benjamin Evans Secretary. The various candidates for office heretofore brought before the public were put in nomination and the following was the result of the voting.

One of the gentlemen had his hand broken, and one was very much injured. A child of about seven years of age was on board, who had presence of mind enough to seize hold of a rope, and in that way was preserved. No blame was imputable to captain Law for the accident; every exertion was made by him and his men for the preservation of the persons in the boat.

Yellow Fever at Middletown, [Con.]—From letters published in the Evening Post, yesterday, it appears there have been thirteen decided cases of Yellow Fever, accompanied with the black vomit, at Middletown, and one in the vicinity of Hartford. No new cases had occurred for several days, and it is hoped that the contagion will spread no farther.

BEDFORD, June 23.

On Thursday last Patrick Cassidy, who resided at Sideling Hill, in this county, in a fit of insanity, as it is supposed, murdered a cousin of his, named Patrick M'Cue, who resided with him. He threw the dead body of his cousin into a small run near the house, covered his face and breast with stones, and laid in his favourite dog which he also killed, near the head of the dead man. He then made off through the woods, without coat, hat or shoes. When he arrived at the old Crossings bridge, after conversing some time with a Mr. Blackhart, he lay down and fell asleep; during his sleep he began to cry murder! Blackhart asked him who he had murdered? He replied Patrick, and they would find him in the spring run, with stones on his face and breast. When he awoke he would say nothing, but started off, saying he was going to Newry. That night Blackhart could not rest; he was disturbed in his sleep by what Cassidy had told him—and before day went off to Mr. J. Dennison and got him to go along. They found the murdered man and dog as above described. Cassidy was followed, and apprehended yesterday morning, at a man's house of his own name, near Newry in Huntingdon county, and brought to our prison, where he now is. His appearance is haggard and melancholy, and his feet and legs are lacerated in a most shocking manner.

MACKINAW, June 20.

"A letter was received some short time since at Chicago, from Major Marston, commanding Fort Armstrong. It appears that the express communication had been cut off, and that the Major availed himself of a Sack Indian to communicate with Major Baker, at Chicago. He states that two men had been killed by the Indians—that they had attempted to cut off his provisions, boats, &c. but failed—that they had made something like a regular attack upon the fort, but were repulsed. His command was too small to think of leaving the fort in presence of the enemy. He had applied to Colonel Leavenworth for aid, but the Colonel's command was too small to afford any.

"The fact is that great apprehensions are entertained for the safety of all the posts west of Green Bay and Chicago. There are so few men at these places that it must be a great temptation to those Indians, who, no doubt, view with concern the rapid strides we are making in their country.

"There are some three or four hundred Indians at this port on their way to Drummond's Island, for the purpose of receiving presents from their great father, George IV. I am told they receive annually, from $10 to 50,000 worth of goods from the British officers at that place."——Buffalo paper.

VARNISH FOR WOOD.

The Italian Cabinet work in this respect excels that of any other country. To produce this effect, the workmen first saturate the surface with olive oil, and then apply a solution of gum arabic in boiling alcohol. This mode of

TOWN OF MEMPHIS,

HAS been laid off by the proprietors on the Chickasaw Bluff, on the east bank of the Mississippi, 224 miles below the mouth of the Ohio. The position is noticed in the Pittsburgh Navigator, p. 165. The site of this town is believed to be the handsomest on the Mississippi below St. Louis.

It is the intention of the propietors not to offer the Lots at public sale, but to induce, and make it the interest of the prudent and discreet adventurers of all classes, to settle and improve the place. The plan for its settlement was not decided on until the 26th inst. when it was determined by the proprietors to dispose of no lots except to actual settlers for a reasonable consideration, payable at the end of five years, on bond, and security if required, to be given at the end of that time. The situation is handsome, well watered, and healty. It is situated in lat. 35°6 N. long. 13°W. from Washington, according to Melish's map. Its position and advantages invite the community particularly, to examine it and judge for themselves.

The proprietors have agents resident at that place, viz: major Marcus B. Winchester, Dr. W. Butler and William Lawrence, any two of whom are authorised to transact business; to whom application can be made, and by whom the terms of settlement and sale, will be more particularly made known.

Valuable Lands,
TO BE SOLD OR EXCHANGED.

THE subscriber offers for sale the following very valuable tracts of land situated in Beaver county, North-Sewickly township, state of Pennsylvania, in Leet's district of depreciation lands: viz.

No. 190—216 acres or thereabouts, with allowance. On which tract is erected a good frame dwelling house, a barn, and other out houses, with about 30 acres cleared, and an excellent spring before the house.

No 178—130 acres—To this tract belongs one third part of a Saw-Mill and has about 18 acres cleared.

No. 173—208½ acres and allowance, on which is cleared about 16 acres. These three tracts lay contiguous to each other, and have between 3 and 400 acres of first rate bottom land, and particularly calculated for grazing farms, and large dairies—it is well watered by Connequenessing and Brush creeks, besides small brooks and springs—with a good Mill seat on Brush creek—lying in a very thriving settlement, from 3½ to 6 miles from two Iron works, and surrounded by 4 merchant mills, at the distance of 1½ to 6 miles; it is about 5 miles and a half from Harmony, 9 miles from Beaver town, and 25 from Pittsburgh,

ALSO.

No. 891—400 acres, with two good improvements on it, with about 60 acres cleared.

No. 404—containg 409 acres, with two improvements on it, and a Tan-yard, lying on the waters of Cherry run. These lots are of a superiour quality, and have the advantage of water conveyance, and would be valuable to proprietors residing on them.

For the above described tracts or either of them, property in Pittsburgh or its vicinity or merchandise, will be taken in exchange, or they will be sold on reasonable terms.

For further information apply to Charles Von Bonnhorst the proprietor, to Dr. James Agnew in Pittsburgh, who is well acquainted with the premises, or to JAMES HALL.

Dissolution of Partnership.

THE co-partnership of the subscribers, heretofore existing under the firm of HENRY MILLER & Co. Patent Cooking Stove Manufacturers, is dissolved by mutual consent. All persons indebted to the firm are requested to make payment to JAMES BELDEN, in Pittsburgh, Pa. who is duly authorised to settle the business of said firm.

HENRY MILLER,
JAS. BELDEN.

Cincinnati, January 27, 1820.

The above business will in future be carried on by the subscriber, at the old stand in Pittsburgh, and as he intends to devote his whole time and attention to the business, the public may rest assured that all orders will be promptly attended to.

The utility, convenience and economy of "C. Postly's Patent Cooking Stove or Portable Kitchen," are becoming too well known in the western country not to be rightly appreciated in these times of pecuniary pressure, when economy n families is so highly recommended and so much insisted on by all wise and judicious men in the country. As this Stove has already obtained the entire approbation of many respectable citizens of Pittsburgh and various parts of the western country who have made trial of it, the subscriber refers to such for any information that may be desired respecting this great improvement in domestic economy.

SUPERIOR EXTRA PATENT
PLOUGHS

Warranted equal to any ever made in the United States.

In pointing out the advantages of the Ploughs over those generally termed 'Peacock's Patent Ploughs,' the subscribers assure the public that they are not actuated by any motives of jealousy or hostility to the persons who have, as they themselves state, purchased the rights for a 'valuable consideration.' But when on a fair trial, the superiority of their Ploughs has been so generally acknowledged by practical farmers, and from the very rapid sale they have met with, they are induced to prefer their claim to precedence.

Because—Their ploughs have a whole share and landside with a socket, made of wrought iron and steel, which prevents the necessity of a number of screws and bolts. which impede the operation of the ploughs by catching roots, grass, &c.

Because—They are so constructed, that any of the irons may be separately taken to a smith's shop for repair, without the necessity, as in case of 'Peacock's Patents,' of taking the whole plough to the shop.

Because—They are more simple in their construction, and less liable to be out of repair.

The ploughs will all be branded with the names of the subscribers, and warranted, and a general assortment of the various sizes always on hand. Also on hand, a quantity of IRONS and CASTINGS, which will be sold on moderate terms, and instructions given (gratis) to such persons as may wish to make the wood work of their own ploughs.

As the proprietors of 'Peacock's Patents,' wish to deter the public from purchasing what they call 'half patents,' in allusion as we believe to those made by the subscribers, under the penalties of the law for every infringement, we deem it proper to state, that those who are disposed to purchase from us will be indemnified, in any security they demand, from the threats thus improperly held out.

Their ploughs are always made of the best materials, and of well seasoned wood.

They still carry on the COACH & WAGGON making business, at their old stand in Wood st. corner of Virgin alley.

It is divided into three sep rate tracts, on each of which there are handso improvements; the land is of the best quali well timbered, and not subject to overflow. is universally esteemed, both as to soil and uation, the finest property in the western co try. The proprietors would prefer selling t whole in a body, but to suit purchasers, it m be divided into three tracts.

The terms may be know [illegible]

TOWN OF MEMPHIS,

HAS been laid off by the proprietors on the Chickasaw Bluff, on the east bank of the Mississippi, 224 miles below the mouth of the Ohio. The position is noticed in the Pittsburgh Navigator, p. 165. The site of this town is believed to be the handsomest on the Mississippi below St. Louis.

It is the intention of the propietors not to offer the Lots at public sale, but to induce, and make it the interest of the prudent and discreet adventurers of all classes, to settle and improve the place. The plan for its settlement was not decided on until the 26th inst. when it was determined by the proprietors to dispose of no lots except to actual settlers for a reasonable consideration, payable at the end of five years, on bond, and security if required, to be given at the end of that time. The situation is handsome, well watered, and healty. It is situated in lat. 35'6 N. long. 13'W. from Washington, according to Melish's map. Its position and advantages invite the community particularly, to examine it and judge for themselves.

The proprietors have agents resident at that place, viz: major Marcus B. Winchester, Dr. W. Butler and William Lawrence, any two of whom are authorised to transact business; to whom application can be made, and by whom the terms of settlement and sale, will be more particularly made known.

Valuable Lands,
TO BE SOLD OR EXCHANGED.

THE subscriber offers for sale the following very valuable tracts of land situated in Beaver county, North-Sewickly township, state of Pennsylvania, in Leet's district of depreciation lands: viz.

No. 190—216 acres or thereabouts, with allowance. On which tract is erected a good frame dwelling house, a barn, and other out houses, with about 30 acres cleared, and an excellent spring before the house.

No 178—150 acres—To this tract belongs one third part of a Saw-Mill and has about 18 acres cleared.

No. 173—208½ acres and allowance, on which is cleared about 16 acres. These three tracts lay contiguous to each other, and have between 3 and 400 acres of first rate bottom land, and particularly calculated for grazing farms, and large dairies—it is well watered by Connequenessing and Brush creeks, besides small brooks and springs—with a good Mill seat on Brush creek—lying in a very thriving settlement, from 3½ to 6 miles from two Iron works, and surrounded by 4 merchant mills, at the distance of 1½ to 6 miles; it is about 5 miles and a half from Harmony, 9 miles from Beaver town, and 25 from Pittsburgh,

ALSO.

No. 891—400 acres, with two good improvements on it, with about 60 acres cleared.

No; 404—containg 409 acres, with two improvements on it, and a Tan-yard, lying on the waters of Cherry run. These lots are of a superiour quality, and have the advantage of water conveyance, and would be valuable to proprietors residing on them.

For the above described tracts or either of them, property in Pittsburgh or its vicinity or merchandise, will be taken in exchange, or they will be sold on reasonable terms.

For further information apply to Charles Von Bonnhorst the proprietor, to Dr. James Agnew in Pittsburgh, who is well acquainted with the premises, or to JAMES HALL.

HENRY MILLER,
JAS. BELDEN.

Cincinnati, January 27, 1820.

The above business will in future be carried on by the subscriber, at the old stand in Pittsburgh, and as he intends to devote his whole time and attention to the business, the public may rest assured that all orders will be promptly attended to.

The utility, convenience and economy of "C. Posly's Patent Cooking Stove or Portable Kitchen," are becoming too well known in the western country not to be rightly appreciated in these times of pecuniary pressure, when economy n families is so highly recommended and so much insisted on by all wise and judicious men in the country. As this Stove has already obtained the entire approbation of many respectable citizens of Pittsburgh and various parts of the western country who have made trial of it, the subscriber refers to such for any information that may be desired respecting this great improvement in domestic economy.
